Walk of Honor

The Aerospace Walk of Honor program pays tribute to distinguished Edwards Air Force Base test pilots whose history of achievement in the field is outstanding. Sidewalk monuments along The BLVD continue to honor the history of these brave men and women.

The first in the United States honoring test pilots, Lancaster’s Aerospace Walk of Honor program acknowledges the City’s sixty-year tradition as the nation’s aerospace center and host City to a distinguished group of internationally known experimental test pilots.

Established in 1990 by the Lancaster City Council, the Aerospace Walk of Honor awards recognition for test pilots whose aviation careers were marked by significant achievements beyond one specific accomplishment. In a profession where extraordinary achievement is the norm, honorees selected for the Aerospace Walk of Honor are those who soared above the rest.
